THE CLASS OF
JUNE 1952

THEME

School is an apprenticeship to life. The student sits on his bench of learning and carves his future with the tools of education. He is taught by master craftsmen with a rich background of competence and understanding. When he has completed his long training, he goes forth, a journeyman into the future, to share with the community the benefits of his skills. He is inspired with a surge of gratitude that unlimited opportunities lie open to him. He whose quest for knowledge extends throughout his life has best served his apprenticeship.

DEDICATION

To our community, which has provided us with education in free public schools, with recreational facilities in public parks, which has protected our health with its clinics and hospitals and has encouraged our faiths through churches and synagogues, and which now offers an outlet for our newly acquired skills, we, the class of nineteen hundred fifty-two, dedicate our lives, our services, and our yearbook.

A Ladder To Success . . .

Success depends on a man's own initiative and the steps he takes in pursuing his career. The framework of one ladder to success is formed in the training now offered by the Apprentice Courses at General Electric's Schenectady Works. Few opportunities offered young men today have the promise that Apprentice Training furnishes. Over fifty per cent of the graduates have found positions of special responsibility, while others have found interesting work in production, methods, planning and allied fields.

A good "first rung" on your ladder of success is enrollment in the Apprentice Course.
